Sports

Samuel F. Palumbo graduated from Collinwood High School in January, 1951. Sports were an early attraction for Sam because he started playing on the varsity football and basketball teams as a tenth grader. He became a team leader and captain of both the football and basketball teams. While at Collinwood Sam earned six varsity letters and was selected to play in the All-Ohio All-Star Football Game.

His success in the game of football continued at the University of Notre Dame where again he played on the varsity team in his freshman year. Sam's college career was being observed by many professional football scouts and after graduating from Notre Dame in 1955, Sam was drafted to play with the Cleveland Browns. Two years later Sam was traded to the Green Bay Packers and played two more years before retiring.

Sam manages his own insurance company and lives in Lyndhurst with his wife Catherine, a January, Collinwood graduate. They have been married for forty-two years and have six children and four grandchildren.
